Charles-Town, July 1, 1771.

LONDON, MAY 7.

WHEN the next general election takes place, we are informed, that the condition of voting in favour of a candidate will be, that he gives a ſolemn promiſe to promote a bill for triennial parliaments. The friends of liberty are determined to exact this teſt from every man that claims their vote and intereſt.

Mr. Alderman Wilkes officiated on Saturday at the Manſion-houſe for the Lord-Mayor; he is the only magiſtrate that has ſat there ſince his Lordſhip has been in the Tower.

MAY 8.

Proceedings in the Houſe of Commons, on the 6th inſtant.

Monday Mr. Seymour moved, that the committee appointed to enquire into the cauſe of the riots might make a report.—In the courſe of his ſpeech he reproached Mr. Wedderburne, who had moved that committee, and ſaid, that there was no occaſion for a committee of enquiry to find out the cauſe of Mr. Wedderburne's deſertion of his friends and profeſſions; he ſaid, he did not accuſe Mr. Wedderburne of deſerting his principles, he believed Mr. Wedderburne never had, never could deſert any principles. Mr. Wedderburne replied nothing to the reproaches, but harangued about riots in general.

Sir George Saville obſerved, that it had been ſaid of Mr. Wedderburne's countrymen, that, when they quitted their own country, they always went as far South as they could; now, Sir George ſaid, this was not altogether true with reſpect to Mr. Wedderburne, for that gentleman had ſtopped in Yorkſhire, where he had gained ſome reputation, by taking a very warm part in oppoſition to a moſt abandoned adminiſtration. He ſaid, that ſince that time Mr. Wedderburne had accepted a place; what he had got by that place, he beſt knew; what he had loſt by it, none could tell but thoſe who feel the ſelf-reproach of baſe actions, and the loſs of ſelf-approbation. He ſaid, Mr. Wedderburne had the other day oppoſed very ably the Divorce Bill, which was to prevent the adulterer from marrying the adulteress; Sir George ſaid, he was ſurprized at it, becauſe this looked a little like conſiſtency in Mr. Wedderburne; for that Mr. Wedderburne himſelf, who was married not long ago to the cauſe of the people, had lately committed adultery with the Miniſtry, and had ſince married the offending party.

Mr. Wedderburne replied, That his conſiſtency was much leſs impeachable than the conſiſtency of the gentlemen who attacked him, and of that little, timorous, petulant, oligarchic faction with whom thoſe gentlemen were unfortunately connected. He bid them, if they could, reconcile their own conduct on the city remonſtrance, which they firſt invited by their own proteſts, which aſſerted the ſame as was contained in the remonſtrance; which they likewiſe approved before it was preſented, and afterwards deſerted. He bid them reconcile their conduct in their viſits to the Tower, and their paltry ſhift of defending the City Magiſtrates on a little collateral ground, whilſt they entirely agreed with the Houſe and the Miniſtry concerning their unlimited powers and undefined privileges. He bid them account for their votes in favour of Mr. Sawbridge's motion to bring in a bill for ſhortening the duration of Parliaments, whilſt, at the ſame time, they did not ſcruple to declare their reſolution to vote againſt the bill itſelf, and againſt ever ſhortening the duration of Parliament. Mr. Wedderburne then declared his opinion to be in favour of ſhort Parliaments; and that the people ought to have redreſs in the caſe of the Middleſex election.

The other ſpeakers on this queſtion were, Mr. Burke, Mr. Dempſter, Lord North, &c. At length the motion was carried for a report to-morrow.

The virtue of the Houſe of Commons lies in the breaſt of the people. If a perſon, once accepting a place, was never re-elected, we ſhould ſoon behold independance ſeated on her proper throne.

Yeſterday afternoon at three o'clock, the Judges being aſſembled in the Houſe of Lords, for the purpoſe of giving their opinions on Lord Chatham's appeal, Lord Chief Baron Parker, and Lord Chief Juſtice Mansfield, in the name of the reſt (who were unanimous) gave in their opinions, which they ſupported by a number of caſes, "That had the words heirs male of the body of Leonora Ann Pynſent been uſed in the will, it was a collective name that deſcribed all the iſſue, and would be in favour of the reſpondent; but as no ſuch contingency happened, they were unanimous in concurring that the limitation, with the remainder over to the reſpondent, was not good in law.

Upon which the Lord Chancellor put the following queſtion: "Is it your Lordſhips opinion that the decree of the Maſter of the Rolls, in favour of the appellant, ſhould be confirmed, or not?" To which their Lordſhips were unanimous in the affirmative.

A great Perſonage, when he was told of the reverſal of the decree in favour of Lord Chatham, obſerved, That it reflected honour on Lord Camden to have his decree confirmed by the unanimous voice of the Judges.

We are informed, that as ſoon as news was carried to Hayes, that the Right Hon. the Earl of Chatham had carried his cauſe in the Houſe of Lords, every houſe was illuminated, and the populace were entertained at his Lordſhip's charge.

MAY 9.

Yeſterday his Majeſty went in ſtate to the houſe of peers, and gave his aſſent to a number of bills: After which the following moſt gracious ſpeech was delivered to both houſes:

"My Lords and Gentlemen,

"AS the ſtate of public buſineſs no longer requires your attendance, I think it right, at this ſeaſon of the year, to put an end the preſent ſeſſion of Parliament.

"The ſatisfaction I have obtained from his Catholic Majeſty for the injury I had received, together with the proofs which the Courts of France and Spain have given me, by laying aſide their armaments, of their ſincere diſpoſition to preſerve the general tranquility of Europe, have enabled me to reduce my forces by ſea and land. The zeal with which you have exerted yourſelves upon the apprehenſion of a rupture with Spain, muſt convince the world of your affectionate attachment to me, and your conſtant regard for the true intereſts of your country. On that ſupport I ſhall always rely for the defence of my honour, and for the ſecurity of the rights of my people.

"With regard to the troubles which ſtill agitate ſome parts of the continent, my endeavours have never been wanting to bring them to an end; and in thoſe endeavours, you may be aſſured, I ſhall perſevere.

"Gentlemen of the Houſe of commons,

"It was with real concern that I found myſelf called upon, by the ſituation of public affairs, to aſk of my faithful commons more than ordinary ſupplies for the ſervice of the current year; and I cannot ſufficiently thank you for the unanimity, chearfulneſs, and public ſpirit with which they have been granted.

"My Lords and Gentlemen,

"While we acknowledge the goodneſs of divine providence in preſerving us from thoſe calamities with which ſome parts of Europe have been afflicted, let me exhort you to employ your beſt endeavours, in your ſeveral ſtations and counties, to render the national happineſs complete, by diſcouraging and ſuppreſſing all groundleſs ſuſpicions and domeſtick diſturbance. I have no other object, and I can have no other intereſt, than to reign in the hearts of a free and happy people: And it is my earneſt wiſh, that my ſubjects may not be prevented, by any miſtakes or animoſities amongſt themſelves, from enjoying, in the fulleſt extent, the bleſſings of a mild and legal government. The ſupport of our excellent conſtitution is our common duty and intereſt: By that ſtandard I would wiſh my people to try all public principles and profeſſions, and to look upon thoſe as their moſt dangerous enemies, who, under any pretence whatſoever, would perſuade them to violate thoſe laws, and undermine that authority, which the conſtitution has provided for the purpoſe of preſerving the general liberty and happineſs."

Then the Lord High Chancellor, by his Majeſty's command, prorogued the parliament to Tueſday the 23d of July next.

On account of the uncertainty of his Majeſty's going to the Houſe yeſterday, there were but few attendants; and a few mean-looking perſons hollowed, which was ſoon ſilenced by the populace crying out, no hired mob.

Yeſterday morning, as ſoon as it was certainly known that his Majeſty would go to the Houſe, to put an end to the ſeſſion of parliament, ſummonſes were iſſued out from Guildhall, to the Aldermen and Common-Council, ſigned D. Smith, deſiring their attendance at Guildhall (the Aldermen in their ſcarlet gowns) and from thence to proceed to the Tower, to conduct the Lord-Mayor and Mr. Alderman Oliver to the Manſion-houſe, in the ſtate-coach. Accordingly, about two o'clock, part of the Court of Aldermen and almoſt the whole Common-Council, preceded by the city marſhal and his deputy, went from Guildhall to the Tower. There were 53 carriages in the train. Mr. Alderman Wilkes in Mr. Reynolds's coach, and Sir William Stephenſon's carriage went firſt. The Hon. members of the Artillery Company accompanied the proceſſion in their uniforms, which made a very fine appearance.

On the Lord-Mayor and Mr. Oliver's being brought to the Tower-gate by the proper officer of that fortreſs, they were ſaluted by twenty-one pieces of cannon belonging to the Artillery Company, and received by the people with the greateſt acclamations, which were continued all the way to the Manſion-houſe, not only from the people aſſembled in the ſtreets, but amazing numbers teſtified their ſatisfaction from the windows of the houſes by which they paſſed.

Sir William Stephenſon, and the Aldermen Townſend, Sawbridge, Wilkes and Trecothick were in the proceſſion.

On the Lord-Mayor and Mr. Oliver's arrival at the Manſion-houſe, the artillery company ſaluted them. They then ſat in the ſtate-coach till all the carriages of the common council had paſſed, in order to return their ſalutes.

The Lord-Mayor and Mr. Oliver then aſcended the ſteps of the Manſion-houſe, preceded by the mace and ſword bearer, and accompanied by the Aldermen and Sheriffs amidſt inceſſant ſhouts and roars of applauſe of an incredible number of their grateful fellow-citizens.

On their arrival at the balluſtrades fronting the great gate, the Lord-Mayor and Mr. Oliver bowed in return to the people aſſembled, and were again ſaluted with loud and univerſal huzzas.

The hiring fellows to huzza the King yeſterday was a political ſtroke of Lord Sandwich.

The city laſt night was grandly illuminated. The populace broke down the iron gates at Serjeants Inn, Fleet-ſtreet, and obliged the inhabitants to put up lights. They likewiſe broke a great number of windows in the Strand, particularly the Somerſet coffee-houſe, where they did not leave a whole pane, and the landlord narrowly eſcaped with his life, in attempting to ſeize one of them. One party had a drum beating through Fleet-ſtreet between ten and eleven o'clock.

The miniſtry dreaded the city preparations to celebrate the releaſe of the two magiſtrates from the Tower, and took every advantage to defeat them. In order to take the citizens by ſurprize, the miniſtry gave out, by means of their agents, that Thurſday was to be the day of prorogation; and ſo remarkably cautious were they of divulging the real truth, that even moſt of their own members were ignorant of it till the King's arrival at the Houſe yeſterday. By this fineſſe, many members of the the artillery company, as well as of the livery, who were ſummoned to wait upon the Lord Mayor on Thurſday, were prevented from attending.

However nobly the Lord Mayor's conduct thro' the whole of the late tranſactions was ſupported, and whatever praiſes are due to him for his firmneſs and intrepidity, it is fit the world ſhould know, that it was almoſt entirely owing to the advice and private influence of Mr. Wilkes.—There are but few who know, perhaps, that his lordſhip, thro' the whole of that affair, acted immediately under the inſtructions of the patriot.—We do not mention this as any mark of diſgrace; for as the advice was good, there was very great merit in following it.

This morning the Right Hon. the Lord-Mayor had a grand levee of the Nobility, Gentry, Common-Council, &c. at the Manſion-houſe, to congratulate him on his releaſe from confinement.

A correſpondent obſerves, that when he ſaw the ſincere unbought acclamations of the people yeſterday, from the Tower to the Manſion-Houſe, and compared them with thoſe of the purchaſed ſhouts at the other end of the town, he was ſhocked to reflect that the Miniſtry were reduced to the ſhameful expedient of hiring a deſpicable ſet of wretches to huzza a great Perſonage, whom, but for their iniquitous proceedings, every true Engliſhman would bleſs as he paſſed along.

After the hired mob had divided yeſterday, about 50 of them, ſuppoſed to be Spitalfields weavers, headed by a man in his own curled hair, and bald on the crown, with a brown coat on, went to the King's Mews, Charing-Croſs, where they ſat down on the timber in that place, and each man received 2s. 6d. for his trouble. A North Briton of diſtinction gave twenty guineas for the above laudable purpoſe.

The hiring fellows to huzza the King yeſterday, was a political ſtroke of Lord Sandwich.

A correſpondent ſays, that public addreſſes were never (before the preſent æra) preſented to a ſtate priſoner in the Tower, which he thinks a proof of our feeling the ſpirit of liberty more ſtrongly than in any preceding period.

Laſt night the mob aſſembled about the houſe of Sir Fletcher Norton, ſpeaker of the Honourable Houſe of Commons, and were very outrageous, breaking all the windows, together with thoſe of ſeveral other houſes, which were not illuminated.

JULY 10*th*, 1771.

CHARLES-TOWN, JULY 25.

THE London Papers, from the Beginning of May to the 8th of June, are almoſt filled with Letters of Mr. Alderman Wilkes and Parſon Horne, wherein they beſpatter one another very freely: The Alderman ſeems, however, in a fair Way of being choſen one of the Sheriffs; and the Parſon, of meeting with eccleſiaſtical Preferment.——Her Majeſty's happy Delivery of another Prince on the 5th of June; and the Death of the Earl of Halifax, Secretary of State for the Northern Department, on the 8th; are almoſt the only Articles beſides any Way intereſting.

The North-Carolina Gazette of the 19th Inſtant, ſays, "Upwards of 6000 of the People called Regulators had taken the Oaths of Allegiance to His Majeſty, and happily returned to their Farms and Plantations."——Their taking the Oaths we make no Doubt of: But we are informed, that ſince the Battle of Aalmance more than 1500 Families, whoſe Proviſions were exhauſted, and Settlements broke up, by the March of Governor Tryon's Army through Orange and the adjacent Counties, have removed into this Province, and will be followed by many more: And that the late "ſignal and glorious Victory," as it has been called, is likely to depopulate and ruin a great Part of that Province.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor has been pleaſed to appoint the Honourable Edward Savage (one of the Aſſiſtant-Judges lately arrived here from England) to be Judge of His Majeſty's Court of Vice-Admiralty in this Province.

Laſt Thurſday Night two valuable Negro Sailors, belonging to William-Gerard de Brahm, Eſq; His Majeſty's Surveyor-General of the Southern Diſtrict of North-America, were drowned in attempting to go on board the Scooner Eagle, by the Overſetting of the Yawl.

On Friday laſt put in here, very leaky, the Ship St. James, Paul Surman, Maſter, from Jamaica, bound for London.

The ſame Day returned from the Northern Colonies, in the Prince of Wales, Captain Moore, Mr. Benjamin Cattell, Mr. Peter Legaré, and others.

Laſt Saturday embarked and ſailed in the Brigantine Friendſhip, Captain Blewer, for Philadelphia, the Rev. Mr. John Thomas, the Rev. Mr. Samuel Hart and Family, the Rev. Mr. Jarvis and Family, Mr. William Oliphant, and ſeveral other Paſſengers.

The ſame Day embarked in the Sloop Nancy, Captain Earl, for Rhode-Iſland, the Rev. Mr. Alexander Keith, Mr. Thomas Elliot, Mrs. Doughty, Mr. James Hunter, Miſs Hunter, Mr. Wagner, a Mr. Gibbons of Georgia, and others.

Laſt Sunday Henry Laurens, Eſq; with two of his Sons, embarked and ſailed for Philadelphia, in the Scooner Brothers Endeavour, Captain William Chiſman.

The ſame Day Mr. William Rugeley, arrived here in the Ship Carolina-Packet, Captain Harford, from London.

Yeſterday embarked and ſailed for England, in the Polly, Captain Minniſal, William-Gerard De Brahm, Eſq; and Mrs. De Brahm.

This Day the Diligence Packet-Boat, commanded by Capt. Arthur Clark, ſailed with the Mails for Jamaica and Penſacola.

This Day Mr. Hufenclever, Mr. Garden and Family (from Jamaica) and others, embarked in the Prince of Wales, Captain Moore, for Philadelphia.
